New Industry Pushes Arkansas Into Better Times

Immortal Crack
Who said it, I don't know, but once heard it's never forgotten — Taxpayers are people who save their money — and politicians are people who are glad of it.

Per capita income in our state has moved upward over a long period of years, in relation to the national average, and the Arkansas Business Bulletin for May, of the University of Arkansas, says it's because of the increase in manufacturing here.

In 1929 Arkansas citizens had a per capita income of only $305, which was 45 per cent of the national average.

Ten years later, in 1939, the Arkansas figure was still lower, $246; but so was the national average, and our figure was 46 per cent of the U. S. item.

But in 1947 both the Arkansas per capita cash and the Arkansas percentage position increased greatly. That year our people had an income of $751 per person, which was 57 per cent of the national average.

The Business Bulletin then shows an interesting sequence of figures on industry for the same years.

In 1929 Arkansas had 44,000 industrial workers, whose output was $2,136 per person — 59 per cent of the national average.

In 1939 the industrial story, like the per capita income story, fell off. There were only 36,000 workers, their per capita production was only $1,633 — and the percentage of the U. S. average was 58.

But in 1947 the number of industrial employees boomed to 58,000, their production increased to $4,586 per man — and percentage of the national average rose to 73.

Factory employment, if you believe the university's analysis, has had a definite impact on the economy of this primarily agricultural state. And it's not only believable — it is entirely logical and truthful.

There is no future anywhere for a nation or a section of a nation in merely producing raw materials to be freighted off for manufacture at some other place.

All the fruits of prosperity in this mechanical age belong to the section with enough intelligence and courage to process as far as possible the raw materials which are native to its region. For the margin between mediocre living and really good living is the addition of labor charges and manufacturing profit to our original raw materials.

And that's coming about, however slowly as the Arkansas Business Bulletin for May seems to point out.

B&PW Holds Benefit Coffee

The club expressed their thanks to the citizens of Hope for their fine patronage and to Mr. and Mrs. Sprouse for their cooperation.

Allies Dare Russia to Hold Free Election

Bonn, Germany, May 26 —(P)—The three Western powers challenged Russia today to clear the way for unifying Germany by consenting to completely free all-German elections tied in with guarantees of full individual freedoms.

The time element of the statement of the three Western high commissioners to the Russian command in Germany was significant. It was issued while world attention was focussed on the rally of 500,000 Communist-led German youth in Berlin. Soviet propaganda belabors the theme that only Russia is sincerely committed to German unification.

Three identical letters of the United States, British and French commissioners were sent to Gen. V. I. Chulikov, Soviet commander in Germany. Enclosed was a statement of the three Western foreign ministers which said the west was agreed that with formation of an all-German government "the four powers should immediately address themselves to a peace settlement."

The letters proposed this program:

(1) A freely elected all-German government.

(2) Individual freedom of movement, freedom from arbitrary arrest and detention, freedom of association and assembly, freedom of speech, press and radio throughout Germany.

(3) Freedom of action throughout all Germany for all Democratic political parties.

(4) Independence of the courts.

(5) Prohibition throughout Germany of political secret police and police formations which are military in character.

(6) Assurance of German economic unity through action by an all-German government on such matters as currency and customs, and through four-power agreement on such matters as a halt to reparations from current production and limitations on industry.

(7) Surrender in accordance with German legislation of any industrial enterprise in Germany whose ownership or control was acquired after May 8, 1945, (the end of the war) by or on behalf of any foreign power, unless the acquisition had four-power approval and such acquisition of interest is subjected to German law.

(8) Establishment of four-power supervision through a commission using its powers in such a way as to permit the German government to function effectively.

60 Countries Seek to Share U. S. Aid

Washington, May 26 —(P)—About 60 countries and dependent areas want to share in the "point four" program of U. S. aid provided for the foreign aid authorization now passed by congress.

State department officials reported this today, following the senate's 4 to 27 vote of approval for the $3,120,550,000 aid bill.

The vote, late yesterday, gave President Truman his first major victory of the year in the field of foreign policy.

Republican senate leaders fought unsuccessfully to block final action on the bill with an attack on the $35,000,000 point four plan to benefit backward areas of the world with American technical aid.

The senate voted to accept a senate-house conference agreement on the foreign aid measure. This action sent the authorization bill to the White House for Mr. Truman's expected signature.

Congress must still act on an appropriations bill supplying the money. In this connection, the economic cooperation administration (ECA), which administers the aid program, reported it would have $277,000,000 left over from the current fiscal year ending June 30. This is $127,000,000 more than had been previously estimated as a carryover.

The senate Republicans let it be known they will carry on their fight against the point four program, so-called from its position in Mr. Truman's inaugural address.

State department officials who told of the 60 requests for point four aid noted that the cost of meeting all of them would be several times the $35,000,000 congress authorized.

Cousin of Local Woman Dies From Crash Injuries

Frank Pierce, 47, died yesterday at Charlotte, N. C. from injuries suffered in a plane crash Wednesday. His wife is in a critical condition.

Mr. Pierce, a first cousin to Mrs. Foy Hammons of Hope, was president of the Dearborn Motor Co. of Detroit, Mich.

Girl, 13, Fails to Pass, Tries to End Life

A 13-year-old grade school student, disappointed because she failed to pass to another grade, drank a bottle of mercurochrome at her school this morning in a suicide attempt.

School officials rushed her to local hospital where she is recovering. Her condition is not considered to be very critical.

The incident occurred about midmorning when students met for the last time this school year to receive final report cards.

Arming Middle East May Ease Situation

Washington, May 26 —(P)—State department officials said today the new American-British-French agreement covering the sale of military weapons to the Middle East should end any danger of an arms race between Israel and the Arab states.

At the same time, they declared, the three power commitment to act against any threat of aggression by either Jews or Arabs, coupled with the arms agreement, should lead to a new degree of stability throughout the whole region.

If these results are in fact accomplished, these officials said, the Western powers will be able to count on much greater security in a part of the world second only to the North Atlantic area in its strategic importance in the cold war with Russia.

The Middle East agreement, announced yesterday, as an outgrowth of the recent meetings in London of Secretary of State Acheson, British Foreign Minister Bevin and French Foreign Minister Schuman. One of their purposes in trying to reach an understanding on the problem was to eliminate a conflict of interests between the United States and Britain which has long irritated their relations.

Up to the time they met, Britain had been selling arms to the Arab states and the United States had been selling arms to Israel. Each of the big powers knew in general what the other was doing but no formal agreement covered their actions nor were French interests in the area adequately taken into account.

Dance Revue to Be Held June 1 at High School

Costumes and stage scenery are being completed this week for the first annual dance revue being presented by the McFadden school of Dance, Thursday night, June 1, in the Hope High school auditorium.

The program will feature five different sets. An outstanding number will be an Indian village scene with costumes and scenery that have been treated with Black Lite, a blue-tinted compound, which when placed under normal light, appears as ordinary color, but which when placed under Ultra-Violet light becomes mystifyingly radiant.

Admission will be 45 cents for adults and 20 cents for children. This admission is being charged to help defray the cost of the stage scenery, special lighting effects, and other expenses.

COWBOY KING — Roy Rogers is shown presenting a Roy Rogers Riders Club charter to Edie Holland, manager of Malco Theaters, Inc. Tuesday as the famous cowboy and his equally famous wife, Dale Evans, came through Hope and were greeted by hundreds of fans young and old.

Mr. Holland, who is to be Ranch Foreman of the club, will conduct meetings at regular intervals, during special week-end matinees at the Saenger theatre.

Details of the club's activities will be announced very shortly. Members will be notified of the events to take place from time to time. Special short subjects, stage entertainments, games and contests are to be featured. On the educational and good-citizenship side, there will be talks on safety and good-fellowship by prominent citizens and officials.

Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, who were met in Texarkana last Tuesday by Edie Holland and Bob Shivers and persuaded to make an unscheduled stop in Hope, were very enthusiastic over starting a club in Hope. Roy said there were now more than 1800 active clubs and he thought they were a great help in building future good citizens.

Of interest to parents and club members are the nine Roy Rogers Riders club rules, which are:

1. Be neat and clean.
2. Be courteous and polite.
3. Always obey your parents.
4. Protect the weak and help them.
5. Be brave but never take chances.
6. Study hard and learn all you can.
7. Be kind to animals and care for them.
8. Eat all your food and never waste any.
9. Always respect the flag and love our country.

Snow Falls in Many Parts of U. S.

By The Associated Press

It was raincoat and topcoat weather in many parts of the country today.

In some of the Rocky Mountain states there was wet heavy snow on the ground. And snow continued today in the higher elevations of Colorado.

The wet, heavy snowfall measured seven inches in Denver while falls up to 11 inches in depth were reported in parts of Wyoming and northern Colorado. The storm caused disrupted telephone service in many Colorado cities and rural areas. Denver streets were littered with tree branches felled by the snow.

There was rain in the southern plains, Oklahoma, northern Texas, Missouri and lower Michigan. Skies generally were fair over most of the area west of the Rockies and in the southeast and cloudy over many parts of the central states.

Temperatures remained on the cool side in the upper Great Lakes region and the upper Mississippi valley. Mild weather was in prospect for the south and northeastern section of the country.

The first radio network, NBC, was opened in November, 1926, followed September the next year by CBS.

U. S. Clamps on Movements of Romanians

Washington, May 26 —(P)—The United States today clamped tight restrictions on the movement of Romanian diplomats in the United States.

The move was in retaliation for actions taken against the American legation in Bucharest by Romania's Communist government.

Announcing the step at a news conference, Under Secretary of State Webb said Romania has been informed that the United States will reduce its official personnel in Bucharest in accordance with a Romanian demand that the staff be slashed to 10 persons.

The travel ban restricts the movements of Romanian Minister Mihai Magheru and his staff to an area of 35 miles around the District of Columbia.

Minister Magheru was told in a note Webb sent him today: "Permission to go beyond the area so described (35 miles from the D. C. boundaries) shall be requested in advance of the department of state according to a prescribed form, of which a facsimile is enclosed herewith xxx."

U. S. Progressing Economically Says Snyder

Blytheville, May 26 —(P)— Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder said today that the United States is making good economic progress.

And, he declared in an address prepared for delivery at a joint luncheon meeting of Blytheville civic clubs, "all of our real achievements as a nation had their beginning at the community level, where fundamentals of good citizenship — free discussion, cooperative effort and individual responsibility for progress — have their greatest meaning."

"When you work together in the creation of a better community or a better town, the results of your efforts are not confined to local boundaries. You have also made a fine contribution to a better country — a better state — a better America."

Snyder praised civic organizations for their part in community development.

The secretary, a former northeast Arkansas banker, observed that Mississippi county's black soil produced more cotton than any other in the nation and the largest soybean crop in the south.

"But," he added, "in the presence of you old friends, I am more convinced than ever that the country's best crop is its people."

Snyder is to speak before the Craighead County 4-H club at Jonesboro Monday night and at a dedication of a war memorial at Forrest City Tuesday.

Soccer Tilt
May Break Relations

Guatemala, Guatemala, May 26 —(P)— Police wielding fire hoses separated two battling soccer teams here last March. As a result relations between Guatemala and neighboring El Salvador are described officially as "tense."

There is even speculation the two central American republics might break off diplomatic relations.

Foreign Minister Gonzalez Arevalo declined to comment on the talk of a possible rupture in relations, but said the situation between the two neighbors is tense.

This comment was made after Finance Minister Alfonso Padilla asked congress yesterday for immediate action on a bill to facilitate repatriation of Salvadorans. He told the lawmakers the matter was one of "national emergency."

Soccer teams from the two countries met here two months ago in the fifth Central American and Caribbean Olympics. They wound up a fight, which local police terminated with a fire hose dousing.

A resulting raise in feeling in San Salvador produced an anti-Guatemalan riot in San Salvador, the nation's capital. One Salvadoran and one Guatemalan were killed.

Since the strong sentiment against Guatemalans reportedly has been spreading in El Salvador.

Non-Political Says McMath of Talks

Harley Pershing
Rock, May 25 — (P) — Gov. McMath, like President Truman, has been making numerous public appearances which he describes as non-political.

McMath says he doesn't plan to campaign actively for reelection until late in June, but his recent Arkansas since March has touched all sections.

However, his visits to the more than 40 towns have been by invitation. They have come from church groups, parent-teachers associations, conventions, civic clubs, farm and youth organizations.

McMath said the talks have nothing to do with his approaching campaign against former Gov. Bent T. Taylor for the Democratic nomination.

These tours are non-political," McMath told newsmen. "These have given me an excellent opportunity to talk and visit with the people of Arkansas."

While the governor hasn't announced full details of his campaign, he will have to hit a fast pace to keep up with his schedule in the past three months.

McMath has dropped his office at 9 a.m., spent a few minutes talking with visitors, topped a plane to speak at a civic luncheon in North Arkansas and then flown to a south Arkansas town for an address before a church group or PTA meeting the same day.

The governor has a map in his hand showing every town touched in his tours and those he expects to visit before opening his campaign.

Dreaming Up a Good Cowboy Character More Profitable Than to Discover Oil

By HAL BOYLE

New York — (P) — The cowboy industry is big business today. And if you want to strike it rich you no longer have to discover oil — just sit down and dream up a cowboy character the kiddies will go for. He'll produce more lasting wealth than any oil well, because a good fictional cowboy never wears out or grows old.

For example, the "Cisco Kid," who is one of the leading rivals of Hopalong Cassidy for the hearts of American boyhood. Like Hopalong, the Cisco Kid began mildly enough and now is reaching epidemic proportions.

He first spurred into public view as a minor character in a short story in a book by O. Henry called "Hearts of the West," published way back in 1907. O. Henry probably got about $100 to $300 for the story, and he died in 1912 without realizing he had created a gold mine.

Today some $5,000,000 is invested in the Cisco Kid, now billed as "The Robin Hood of the Golden West." He is heard over some 300 radio stations, he stars in six movies a year, and he is also making 52 television films. Thirty kinds of Cisco Kid merchandise, ranging from coloring books to dangle earrings and holsters, are being marketed.

"We expect to sell $10,000,000 worth of Cisco Kid merchandise this year," said a business spokesman for the mythical border Robin Hood. "And we feel that in 1951 it may reach $80,000,000. There doesn't seem to be any limit to the interest in western characters."

The Cisco Kid has been played by four different film actors. Warner Baxter won an academy award in the role in 1931. He was ditiorium. About 100 persons followed. Some of those who left the auditorium with him cried "let him speak."

ly, to the cop. "Believe it or not, I haven't an idea who she is or anything about her."

"The murdered her! See the knife?" The crowd surged around him, shouting, pushing, angry while Gloria fought with her arms and knees to get through to him, half-sobbing. "Let me through! He's my husband!"

"Stand back!" the first cop bawled again. "All of yer!" But no one paid him any attention.

The jostling had loosened the dead girl's red bathing cap so that, as Gloria finally reached Miltiades' side, the cap fell back to show a strand of dyed, parti-colored hair and she knew where she had seen the girl before.

"It's Sal!" Gloria knew blankly and then yelled, "You let go of my husband!"

A big bruiser clad in a pair of shorts printed in large palm trees had jumped up onto Miltiades' back and was bawling, "I got him! He can't get away!"

"Let him go, Mister. I'm in charge here," an authoritative voice said and Gloria was never so glad to see anyone before in her whole life as Lieutenant McGann's stern plump face, his dependable salt and pepper arm to which she clung as Miltiades angrily shook off the kabitizer.

"We found her out in the water!" Gloria babbled. "I sent Miltiades to help her to save her life." Then, as this did not seem exactly an appropriate way to put it, "I saw her bobbing and thought she was drowning so Miltiades went to save her."

Her voice died away for the lieutenant had bent down, was examining the knife between the shoulder blades of the girl lying there face down on the sand. He pushed back the white bathing cap gently from the handle and a peculiar look came over his face. "You folks should patronize a new hardware store," Lieutenant McGann said, straightening up. Gloria and Miltiades stared at the knife. The small gilt letters stood out clear in the sunlight. "MRS. M. B."

followed by Cesar Romero and Gilbert Roland.

The present portrayal of the durable kid is Duncan Renaldo, who speaks nine languages, has three children of his own and is active in the parent-teachers association.

The formula of the Cisco Kid stories is simplicity itself. He and played by Leo Carrillo, get involved in some adventure in which they are mistaken as villains. They always clear up the mystery, after some hard-riding and banging, and emerge as heroes.

"The most we can shoot is one villain a picture," said Renaldo. "That's all we're allowed. After that it gets too gory."

"We can't smoke, or take a drink — and we have an awful time even getting in a kiss with a girl. The kids want action and laughs — and that's what we give them."

Television has made the work more hazardous for the stars, as they no longer can use doubles.

"Now we have to do our own fights to get the closeups," Renaldo said. "Last January I got into a fight with a young actor who didn't know the technique of movie fighting."

"He came too close as I clipped him, and he was out for half an hour."

"Some of the stunts are pretty dangerous. Last year I had a saddle horn go through me. A cowpoke fired a blank accidentally in front of my horse, and it reared and fell on me."

The horses themselves take the films more seriously than the cowboys, said Renaldo, "and if there is a crowd watching, they start prancing around and showing off. They are regular hams."

State Bankers Object to Tax Setup

Hot Springs, May 25 — (P) — The Arkansas Bankers association believes there is inequality in income tax payments of financial institutions and that the situation should be straightened out.

The association adopted a resolution here yesterday urging that "all mutual savings banks and mutual building and loan associations be required to pay federal income tax on the basis and at the same rate as applies to other banking institutions."

The resolution, approved at the closing session of the association's annual convention, said "there is great inequality in the payment of federal income tax, and under the present law there are a great many organizations that are exempt from paying federal income tax due to their mutual status."

A second resolution sought a larger return for banks in crop loans in which the commodity credit corporation participates.

The 50-50 split between the CCC and banks of the three per cent interest on farm commodity loans is not adequate for the banks, the bankers agreed. The resolution suggested the banks should get 2-1/2 per cent for "preparing and financing the loans," which it said relieved the CCC of any expense at the source.

Auto Tire Prices on Increase

New York, May 24 — (P) — Automobile tire prices are on the increase and industry sources warn the motorists they may not even higher.

Major producers hiked the price of passenger car tires 2-1/2 per cent, exempting on second line grades, and advanced truck and bus tires 5 per cent.

U.S. Rubber Co. started the series of announcements and was followed by Goodyear Tire and Rubber, B.F. Goodrich, General Tire and Rubber, Sieberling, and Firestone.

Prices of farm and industrial tires and inner tubes were not included in the increases.

A sharp rise in natural rubber costs was given by several companies for the advance. Producers pointed out that natural rubber was 29-3/4 cents a pound in New York yesterday, compared with about 17 cents last December and 20 cents on April 1.

Passenger car tire prices were boosted to $15.80 for the popular 6.00 by 10 size last November. The current increase makes the new price $18.20.

Ingrid and Italian Are Finally Married

Rome, May 25 — (P) — Roberto Rossellini and Ingrid Bergman, whose widely publicized romance was climaxed last February by the birth of a son, were married by proxy yesterday in Juarez, Mexico.

The nuptials in absentia broke through legal delays that had blocked the couple's path in the United States. Sweden and Italy since February, when Miss Bergman quit her film career to bear the Italian director's son.

The ceremony was performed at 12 noon (EST) by Judge Raul Orozco in Juarez, just across the Rio Grande from El Paso. The judge said Juarez Attorney Javier Alvarez signed the register for Rossellini and Arturo Gomez Trevino, another Juarez lawyer, signed for Miss Bergman.

Chrysler Back in Full Production

Those many thousands of loyal Chrysler customers who have so patiently awaited the end of the protracted strike in our plants soon will have their patience rewarded," says Joseph A. O'Malley, General Sales Manager of the Chrysler Division.

"With the resumption of production, we inaugurated the most ambitious schedule in the history of this division. In order that we may get cars to our dealers in quantity at the earliest possible moment, we have inaugurated a production schedule of at least two shifts in all manufacturing departments and three shifts in the machine shops. All departments operating on a two-shift basis are working nine hours a day per shift, instead of the eight hours in effect before the strike."

"At the outset, we instituted what is in effect a counterpart of the sampling program that we use when introducing a new model, so that every dealer may have some 1950 models on his floor as soon as possible. A very large percentage of the dealers were without cars during the greater part of the nearly 15 weeks during which production was suspended. Yet in spite of this handicap, they continued to book many orders, attesting the tremendous popularity that our current line achieved in the short time between its introduction and the shut-down of the plants."

"With our supply lines entirely drained by the strike, it obviously is going to take a little time to get cars flowing to the field in such volume that orders can be filled promptly, but we can assure our friends that the worst of the waiting period is over and the establishment of normal conditions will not be much longer delayed."

"Fortunately, our manufacturing program had reached a high level at the time the strike was called, so all the preparatory work involved in the introduction of a new model was behind us and we were able to get into high gear in production almost immediately after the men returned to their jobs. Furthermore, the quality of our manufacture on 1950 models has been the highest in our entire history, and we were able to pick up just where we left off, with only a few hours required for the long idle operation."

On the third day after the plants reopened, we were able to attain virtually our maximum production schedule. Furthermore, when our employment office reopened, the line of applicants stretched more than two long city blocks, evidence that the labor, both to replace the relatively few men lost during the strike, and to complete the additional crews required by our present schedule, is in good supply."

"We are indeed appreciative of the loyalty of the public during the trying times that we have just been through. It is gratifying that so many prospective purchasers believed that Chrysler's were worth waiting for, even though competitive makes were in abundant supply. It is our firm purpose to make everyone of these patient individuals glad that he waited, by putting in his hands a vehicle that will surpass even our own previous highest standards."

ly, to the cop. "Believe it or not, I haven't an idea who she is or anything about her."

"The murdered her! See the knife?" The crowd surged around him, shouting, pushing, angry while Gloria fought with her arms and knees to get through to him, half-sobbing. "Let me through! He's my husband!"

"Stand back!" the first cop bawled again. "All of yer!" But no one paid him any attention.

The jostling had loosened the dead girl's red bathing cap so that, as Gloria finally reached Miltiades' side, the cap fell back to show a strand of dyed, parti-colored hair and she knew where she had seen the girl before.

"It's Sal!" Gloria knew blankly and then yelled, "You let go of my husband!"

A big bruiser clad in a pair of shorts printed in large palm trees had jumped up onto Miltiades' back and was bawling, "I got him! He can't get away!"

"Let him go, Mister. I'm in charge here," an authoritative voice said and Gloria was never so glad to see anyone before in her whole life as Lieutenant McGann's stern plump face, his dependable salt and pepper arm to which she clung as Miltiades angrily shook off the kabitizer.

"We found her out in the water!" Gloria babbled. "I sent Miltiades to help her to save her life." Then, as this did not seem exactly an appropriate way to put it, "I saw her bobbing and thought she was drowning so Miltiades went to save her."

Her voice died away for the lieutenant had bent down, was examining the knife between the shoulder blades of the girl lying there face down on the sand. He pushed back the white bathing cap gently from the handle and a peculiar look came over his face. "You folks should patronize a new hardware store," Lieutenant McGann said, straightening up. Gloria and Miltiades stared at the knife. The small gilt letters stood out clear in the sunlight. "MRS. M. B."

Watchman Kills Friend and Wife, Ends Own Life

Memphis, Tenn., May 26 — (P) — Police said a 37-year-old night watchman killed a friend, Wilson Giles, and then committed suicide in a burst of gunfire last night.

Inspector Pete Wiebenga said a preliminary investigation indicated Preston Smith began the violence in an argument over money. Smith had been a friend of the Giles family for 15 years.

The shootings occurred on the grounds of Chocaw, Inc., makers of concrete pipe and road building machinery, where the 31-year-old Giles was a foreman and Smith a watchman.

Mrs. Giles, 28, had come to the plant to meet her husband. She was reported in critical condition with a bullet wound in her right breast.

The bodies of Giles and Smith were found 75 yards apart. Wiebenga said Smith apparently shot the Giles in front of the plant, then walked around to the side of a building and killed himself. A pistol was cradled in his arm.

pastor, read the impressive ceremony before an altar decorated with floor baskets of white gladioli, white double stock, palm fern, and woodwardia.

Mrs. B. C. Hyatt, organist, provided a program of nuptial music which included "O Promise Me", "Calm As The Night", and "Claire de Lune", and accompanied A. W. Keith, Jr., of Stamps, cousin of the bride, who sang "At Dawning", and "I Love You Truly". During the exchange of vows, Mrs. Hyatt softly played "To A Wild Rose". The traditional wedding marches were used as processional, and recessional.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Douglas Keith of Shreveport, wore a ballerina-length model of white organdy over tulle, fashioned with short sleeves and full skirt. Her small white starched lace hat was studded with rhinestones and she wore long white lace mitts. Her only ornament was a diamond lavalier, a family heirloom. She carried a bouquet of gardenias on a white ribbon showered with white sweetpeas.

Miss Zilpha Keith was her sister's maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a yellow organdy ballerina length dress. Her natural straw half hat was trimmed with yellow daisies, and she wore yellow lace mitts. She carried a nosegay of lavender sweetpeas and daisies.

Paul D. McClellan served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Jim Freeze, and Forrest Crawford of Lewisville.

Mrs. Keith chose for her daughters wedding, a navy blue sheer dress with navy accessories and a corsage of pink feathered carnations. Mrs. Wilson, mother of the bridegroom, wore an aqua crepe dress and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. W. C. Jack of Taylor, Ark., maternal grandmother of the bride, wore a white printed silk and her corsage was of lavender sweetpeas.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the Keith home on West Fourth street. Miss Edith Massey greeted the guests at the door and introduced them to the receiving line which included Mrs. Keith, the bride, Miss Zilpha Keith, and Paul McClellan. The house was decorated throughout with arrangements of white lilies, roses, sweetpeas, and shasta daisies.

Mrs. Claude Byrd sister of the bride, presided at the guest book. The green and white color scheme was carried out in the decorations of the dining room. The brides table covered with a white linen cutwork cloth, was centered with a crystal epergne of Queen Anne's lace and white brides roses. White tapers shed soft light over the scene. Mrs. E. F. McMahon, sister of the bridegroom, presided at the white wedding cake embossed with white roses and placed on a reflector. Pouring the frosted green punch from the crystal bowl encircled with Queen Anne's lace was Mrs. L. G. Tucker, aunt of the bride, from Cotton Valley, La. The white napkins were engraved with the names of Mary Louise and Jack in gold.

The buffet was centered with a crystal epergne of white tapers Queen Anne's lace and roses and flanked on each side by crystal epernettes holding single tapers, and the same flowers. This was reflected in the large mirror over the buffet.

Those assisting in dispensing hospitalities were Mrs. Manuel Hamm, Mrs. Fred Duncan, Mrs. Garrett Story, Mrs. Clyde Monts, Mrs. David Griffin, Miss Dorothy Henry, Miss Jean Rooker, and Miss Norma Barrow.

After the reception the couple left for a wedding trip to Rockaway Beach, Missouri. For traveling, the bride chose a pure silk shantung suit of lovebird blue, a white pique bonnet and purse, and white linen opera pumps. She pinned the gardenias from her bouquet at her shoulder.

Among the out of town guests were Mrs. Claude Byrd and son, Keith, Mrs. L. G. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wilson and daughters, Barbara and Sandra of Cotton Valley, La.

DOROTHY DIX

Bachelorhood

Dear Miss Dix: What are the advantages of being a bachelor? What are the disadvantages of being one?

Answer: The principal advantage of being a bachelor is that you are free. You can come and go as you please. You do not have to punch the home time clock. You do not have to rack your brain thinking up alibis when you stay downtown to play poker with the boys. If you want to stay at home of an evening and read, well and good. If you want to step out, also well and good. You are your own master.

You can spend your money on yourself. You can blow it in for a new car or glad raiment or put it in the savings bank. You do not have to see the dollars you have toiled for so hard go for groceries and coal and doctors' bills and baby clothes and millinery.

Can Take More Chances

Kipling says "he travels the fastest who travels alone." The bachelor can give up a poor job on the chance of getting a better one. The married man can take no such risk. The single man has many doors of opportunity opened to him that are shut to the married man. He can go to many places to which he could not take a family.

These are some of the advantages that the bachelor enjoys. Some of the drawbacks are that, while he is free, even freedom has a price tag on it that often makes it cost more than it is worth. It is true that he can go and come as he pleases without meeting any reproaches when he returns, but that is because nobody cares whether he ever gets back or not. True, he can spend his money on himself, but after he has bought himself a few garments and a car, what else is there for him to buy? A family costs a lot, but it is the best old-age insurance in money and happiness that any man can take out.

In every human heart the dominant desire is for love and companionship and for somebody to belong to you. The married man has these and the bachelor lacks them, and that is what makes marriage a paying proposition.

Dear Miss Dix: I have a fine husband and do not regret marrying him ten years ago, but after I had to ask for carfare, money for a wave or manicure, I just started padding bills. It seemed simple and saved argument. There are thousands of other women doing the same thing. We do it willingly, for the most part, because we love our men, and if they are willing to spend their money on the grocer and the butcher instead of giving it to their wives, why put it that way? Ask husband to give us an allowance, you say? Just try it.

Answer: I have tried it. For years I have been nagging husbands about giving their wives allowances, and trying to make the poor, dumb creatures see not only how unfair and unjust they are to expect a wife to work for her board and clothes, but also to realize how it humiliates a woman to have to go like a beggar to her husband for every cent she spends, and how it outrages her sense of justice never to have any of the money that she earns given her as her right instead of as a gratuity.

Men know they wouldn't like to be dependent on the most generous father in the world, and that they would die of self-contempt if they had to ask every morning for a little carfare or the price of a package of cig-

Bomb Placed in Northwestern Fraternity House

Evanston, Ill., May 26 — (AP) — A lighted fumigating bomb was placed in the lobby of the Sigma Chi fraternity house on the Northwestern university campus early today.

Twenty-four university students and ten Evanston firemen were overcome by fumes and are hospitalized at Evanston hospital. Officials said none was in serious condition.

Assistant Fire Chief James Geishecker said the bomb was a full gallon size of the type used in fumigating large buildings.

He termed the placing of the bomb in the lobby part of "an interfraternity war." He said that while firemen were climbing fire coughing, choking students other students milled about outside tossing "heavily loaded firecrackers at the firemen.

To dispute what they say merely brings on more words and gives them a fresh start. The only possible way to shut them up is a surface agreement that cuts the ground out from under their feet.

You have been wise enough to perceive this and this enables you to live in peace and harmony with an arguer, and if it calls for a few white lies, believe me they are the sort on which the Recording Angel drops a tear and blots them out. But, Lord, how I pity a woman who has a husband with the arguing habit.

Dear Miss Dix: I have a friend who has everything that the heart of a woman could desire. A devoted and wealthy husband who lavished upon her everything that money could buy. Suddenly her husband lost his health and his money. For four years her mother was helpless invalid and my friend had to nurse her. She lives in a poor little house. She has shabby clothes. She has to do all of her own housework. But she is always smiling and never downhearted. No one has ever heard utter a word of complaint. How can she do this. She who has had so much, never mentions it.

ONE OF HER ADMIRERS

Answer: It is not the things that a woman has that make her happy. It is what is in her own soul. This woman has strength and courage and sportiveness and she takes whatever blows life hands her on the chin and if she is knocked down she gets up, and fights again.

Whether a woman is crushed by misfortune or not depends altogether on her own morale, on the stuff of which she is made. There are women who, when they lose their money, spend the remainder of their lives beating upon their breasts and telling about how they never expected to come to this. And there are other women who, when their fortunes are swept away, shrug their shoulders and courageously go out into the world and find jobs and get more fun out of it than they did in being rich.

Dear Miss Dix: About two years ago I married into a family who play cards and dance. I could get much pleasure from these amusements and fit in much better with my in-laws, but it would horrify my mother. She believes these are great evils and no one can make her think that they can be done in decency. Shall I be a wallflower everywhere I go or play cards and dance and risk losing my mother's love?

Answer: I cannot advise you to hurt your mother, as you would by doing the things which she thinks are wrong, but which are really harmless diversions. You cannot argue with nor change fanaticism.

Princess and Commoner on Honeymoon

San Francisco, May 26 — (AP) — Dark-eyed Princess Fatima, 16, honeymooned today with a 31-year-old commoner — but the fury of Egypt's King Farouk hung darkly over them like a desert sandstorm.

Suave Riall Uhall, denounced by his unwilling royal brother-in-law, said after last night's Moslem rites he may have to leave for Cairo June 18. Ordered home by the indignant Farouk, he passed the word to the U. S. immigration service.

The princess scorned her royal brother's orders lifting her title and impounding her fortune to wed her heart's choice. But she agreed after the hotel ceremony that the silence from Cairo was ominous. Then she added:

"I can always hope."

The Queen Mother Nali, bejeweled and wearing a strapless, rainbow-hued gown, was almost sad faced as her youngest daughter and Chail exchanged "I do's."

When it was over she confided: "I think it will be a short honeymoon."

The radiant bride, wearing a white French gown with filmy veil and long bridal train, firmly said "I do" on the presence of an adviser to queen mother, was scarcely heard by the guests, in formal attire for what had been announced as a "reception."

Kidnapers Hold Child of Movie House Operator

Mexico City, May 26 — (AP) — The men kidnapped the six-year-old daughter of a millionaire movie house operator yesterday and left a note demanding $18,000 ransom in gold.

The child, Norma Granat, was snatched as she and her nurse left the home of her father, Samuel Granat, owner of a chain of movie houses. The men gave the nurse a quick away with the child.

The note gave no instructions for delivering the gold, but warned that if police were notified, the child will be killed.

Police said they had no report of the kidnapping, but it was confirmed by the child's mother. After sources estimated Granat's fortune at between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000.

in Cairo, was much in the thought of those who watched the love-struck couple become husband and wife — under a magnolia tree decorated with wired gardenias.

The missionary, a black-bearded bashir Ahmad Momo, during an oration of more than 30 minutes to the fidgeting crowd, said:

"The law cannot come forward and put live into man's heart. I may show my respect to man with a title but he does not frighten me."

"Islam does not want titles. It is for the woman to decide the man she wants. It is for the man to decide the woman he wants. Islam wants to level these things. Anyone who wishes to make distinctions is very unjust."

Union, GM Agreement Important

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, May 25 — (P) — This is an explanation of the new contract between General Motors and the CIO Auto Workers' union.

The contract, signed on Tuesday, goes into effect next Monday. It will last five years. It cannot be reopened for any reason. It guarantees the workers a raise each year for the next five years.

Suppose in that time living costs go up. The workers are protected on that. Suppose living costs go down. GM gets a break on that.

But if living costs see-saw up and down may the workers wind up without any raise at all? No. The raise is guaranteed. They'll get it.

Here's how:
The workers get a flat increase of 4 cents an hour each year for the next five years, starting Monday.

Over the five year period this will mean for them a total increase of 20 cents an hour.

Suppose living costs go down. GM and the union agree to abide by the government's thermometer or index, showing living costs.

For approximately every index point that living costs drop, the workers will lose one cent — but they cannot lose more than a total of 3 cents, no matter how far living costs drop in five years.

This is how that will work: Getting four cents an hour more each year for five years, the workers will have received a total increase of 20 cents at the end of that time if living costs remain unchanged.

But suppose in those five years living costs drop one point below what they are now. Then the workers will lose one cent and wind up at the end of five years with a 19-cent raise, instead of 20.

If, in that time, living costs drop three points, the workers will wind up with a total increase of 17 cents, instead of 20.

But they can't lose more than those three cents over the five years, no matter how far living costs drop.

Suppose, for instance, in those five years living costs fall 20 points. The workers can't lose more than 3 cents, so they'll still end up five years from now with no less than 17 cents an hour more.

Suppose living costs go up. In addition to their flat raise of 4 cents an hour each year for five years, the workers will get one cent an hour more for each rise of one point in living costs.

For example: Suppose in this next year, when the workers' wages are increased four cents an hour, living costs go up five points.

In that case — in addition to their flat, guaranteed raise of 4 cents an hour — the workers will receive an additional five cents an hour, or a total of nine.

Carry it one step further: At the end of five years, if there's no change in living costs, the workers will be receiving a total increase of 20 cents an hour.

If in that time living costs have gone up — say — 15 points, the workers will be receiving 35 cents an hour more than now.

True, they'll get in that case 1 cents more an hour because of the 15-point increase in living costs. But suppose, after going up 15 points, living costs drop back to where they are now and then drop another 15 points. What happens?

Nothing. The workers will still be getting that 35-cent raise. The 15-point drop in living costs doesn't affect the raise.

So, the workers are protected. They'll get a raise each year for the next five years, no matter what happens to living costs.

That's the important part of the new contract. It guarantees the workers a raise each year for the next five years, no matter what happens to living costs.

All proceeds from admission and cake auction will go toward the expense of the supervised recreation program. Admission charge will be 15 and 35 cents.

The workers cannot lose more than a total of 3 cents over the five year period. Therefore, the least they can get by the end of five years is 17 cents an hour more than they're making now.

In addition to this wage agreement, of course, the auto workers won from the company a pension plan, hospital insurance, and other things.

tiades. You'll just make yourself a laughing stock. His father is Prof. John Nemo Brown, head of the department of classical drama at a big college in Boston and his second cousin once removed married a Cabot. I tell you, the Browns mean something in Boston!

"The McGanns mean something in Brooklyn," the lieutenant told her grimly.

THERE was no more conversation until they drew up in front of the Splendide Apartments, and then Miltiades urged, "Call the boss and have him send me a lawyer that's how you can help most, kid. And don't open the apartment door unless you know who's outside. Promise? I suppose," he asked the lieutenant without much hope, "he couldn't go home to her folks in Boston?"

The policeman shook his head. "I'll keep my man on. She'll be okay. And so," he jested grimly, "will you. Safe as a nut in its shell."

"The simile applies to you, not me," Gloria told him, furiously. "Of all the nut-headed . . . Don't worry, darling," she told Miltiades tenderly. "I'll have you out of there in the flip of a gnat's wing. I have a little idea."

"Hey!" Miltiades had experienced her little ideas before and all of them had been slightly unorthodox, not to say, illegal. "She can't get into much mischief when she's tailed," McCann reminded him.

"Who's going to stop me from doing what I please? Certainly not your flat-footed minions!" Gloria's cheeks burned so indignantly and her jade eyes flashed till she looked so entirely gorgeously angry that Miltiades felt awed that so much beauty belonged to him. "There is something that even you do not know, Miltiades," she told him proudly. "My grandfather was a Perkins of Beacon Hill, but he married a Gloria Mulligan from East Boston, from whom I got my name, and maybe my brains. And a Mulligan's as good as a McGann any day! Goodbye, my darling. But not for long."

3 Binaggio Henchmen Are Indicted

Kansas City, May 25 — (P) — Three henchmen of the Charles Binaggio northside political organization, including gambler Walter L. Rainey, were indicted by a federal grand jury here today on charges of income tax evasion. The other two were Samuel Goldberg, and John (The Mag) Mangiaracina.

Both Rainey and Mangiaracina were each indicted on three counts and Goldberg on five. The government charged Goldberg had not even bothered to make reports for the years 1947-48 when it contends he had a gross income of $63,631.

It was the second time within a week that the grand jury, which has been investigating the underworld here since last September, has struck at figures close to Charles Binaggio, the Northside political boss who with his political henchman, Charles Gargotta, was slain gangster style in his first district Democratic club rooms on Truman road April 5.

Justice Douglas Named Father of the Year

New York, May 25 — (P) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas was named "father of the year" today.

Alvin Austin, director of the National Father's day committee, said Douglas was selected because he was considered "the most colorful and outstanding personality in public life today who by his thoughts and acts exemplifies the committee's 1950 theme, 'for a world tomorrow, teach democracy today'." Father's day is June 18.

Other 1950 titles:
The civilian defense office in the national security resources board (NSRB) says it will have a plan for a permanent program ready for states and communities in September. A permanent plan doesn't mean perfect protection — only the best that seems possible.

Getting the plans in operation is something else. That is why a temporary, emergency plan also is being developed to give cities an idea of how they could use their present equipment and manpower in case of an immediate attack.

So far only 20 states have passed civil defense or disaster preparedness laws. Plans for dealing with disasters have been developed by administrative action in seven other states.

That leaves 21 without laws. What the count is on cities nobody knows.

Family Seeking Lawyer for Harry Gold
Philadelphia, May 25 — (P) — Harry Gold, 30, year-old chemist accused of delivering America's atomic secrets to Russia, remained in jail today while members of his family sought a lawyer to represent him.

His brother, Joseph, 33, told newsmen that the lawyer's first action — after he's hired — will be to bring habeas corpus proceedings in an attempt to reduce the $100,000 bail set for Harry Tuesday night by federal district Judge James P. McGranery.

The accused spy is under quarantine at Holmsburg County prison, officials advised his brother and father they they could not visit him until tomorrow.

Harry is under constant guard. Joseph and his 70-year-old father, Samuel, said they were talking about Harry now only in an effort to describe his character and not to justify his actions. The father is a retired cabinet maker; Joseph is an employee at the naval aviation depot here.

McCarthy Hurls Another Broadside

Rochester, N. Y., May 26 — (P) — A new exchange of broadsides between Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) and Owen Lattimore added fresh thunder today to the controversy over McCarthy's Communist-in-government charges.

The Wisconsin senator produced documents last night which he said prove that Lattimore intervened to keep the U. S. government from firing two wartime Chinese employees, after the civil service commission had recommended their discharge because of alleged Communist activity.

Lattimore promptly fired back from Baltimore that McCarthy was repeating charges against the two Chinese "without producing the full record." That record shows, the Far Eastern affairs specialist, added that at least one of the men was in this country on a diplomatic passport issued by the Chinese nationalist government.

In a speech here last night, McCarthy also took on the state department for a fresh round in their bitter battle over whether the department employs Communists and Communist sympathizers.

McCarthy's charges that there are Reds in the department are being investigated by a senate foreign relations subcommittee.

The senator said last night that the department had engaged in a "fraudulent cover up" of the information regarding Lattimore and the two Chinese.

He also lashed out once again at Ambassador-at-Large Philip C. Jessup, displaying letterheads which he said prove that Jessup belonged to Communist front organizations.

Arkansas Farmers Cited for Past Year's Services
Washington, May 25 — (P) — Two Arkansas were cited by the agriculture department today for outstanding services the past year.

Dr. Lyle T. Alexander, of Prairie Grove, and Rose J. Feducia, native of Helena, were among 65 persons receiving the department's superior service award.

Awards included a silver medal and a certificate. They are made on the basis of outstanding accomplishments or contributions by department employees in their particular field of work.

Dr. Alexander, now with the division of plant industry, soils and agricultural engineering, was cited "for achievements in soil science, including integrating principles of soil chemistry and physics with those of soil genesis, classification and management; for investigating and using radio-active materials; and for developing laboratory support in basis and applied research for the national cooperative soil survey."

Blames Tax Setup on Taxwriters
Washington, May 26 — (P) — Rep. Mason (R-Ill.) said today house taxwriters have killed chances for a new tax bill by such "inconsistencies" as the rejection of a plan to require cooperatives to pay normal business taxes.

The house ways and means committee late yesterday rejected proposals to make certain now-exempt income of the co-ops subject to regular corporation tax rates.

Mason, a committee member, called that action an indication of "political favoritism for co-ops," and said it was just one more sign that "there will be no tax bill this year."

That would sound the death knell for committee-approved cuts in excise taxes totalling $1,080,000. The house group is trying to slash excises and raise additional revenue all in one bill.

While it refused to vote new co-op taxes, the committee did vote to pick-up an estimated $20,000,000 extra annually by tightening up on taxes due under present law from co-op stockholders and on the patronage dividends received by co-op patrons.

Mason directed his "political favoritism" charge at the committee for its action in:

1. Rejecting a proposal to subject to the corporate income tax the unallocated reserves of exempt co-ops.

2. Turning down another proposal to tax the unrelated business income of co-ops. An "unrelated business" was cited by a committee spokesman as such a situation as where a farmers' co-op operates a 10-cent store.

Counterfeit Ring Broken, Eight Seized
New York, May 26 — (P) — Seven men and an attractive blonde have been seized in a crackdown on an alleged $3,000,000 counterfeit smuggling ring supposedly linked to a Caribbean revolution.

The fantastic scheme, according to an authoritative source, was to sneak $3,000,000 in bogus U.S. bills into Cuba's national treasury, exchange them for good Cuban money and then finance a revolt in the Dominican Republic.

The blonde and four men were arrested here and one man was apprehended in Miami yesterday. Two Cubans were held in that country.

In indictment returned by a federal grand jury here alleged a conspiracy to buy money from a big American counterfeit ring. They did not mention the reported Dominican revolution connection. The indictment named the two Cubans as plotters.

The alleged plan to milk the Cuban treasury was revealed before U.S. Commissioner Edward W. McDonald here as five prisoners were arraigned.

"What was to be done with the $3,000,000 in Cuban money?" the al to tax the unrelated business income of co-ops. An "unrelated business" was cited by a committee spokesman as such a situation as where a farmers' co-op operates a 10-cent store.

Brothers Held for Arkansas Circus Robbery

Little Rock, May 26 — (P) — Two brothers were held at Omaha, Neb., today in connection with an $18,100 circuit robbery at Berryville, Ark., last October.

The two were identified as Rex Alcala Baker, 45, and Riley Simpson Baker, 41, both of Dallas.

The U. S. district attorney's office at Fort Smith, seeks their removal to Arkansas to face charges of interstate transportation of stolen property, a federal offense.

The Bakers were to be arraigned at Omaha today.

They were taken into custody at Omaha last night by the federal bureau of investigation and Omaha detectives. Their arrest was announced here by S. S. A. den, special agent in charge of the Little Rock FBI office.

The robbery occurred last Oct. 19 as the Al G. Kelley — Miller Brothers circus was starting for Huntsville after two performances at Berryville.

Three armed men held up circus owner Kelley Miller and his wife as the Millers prepared to leave the circus grounds in their semi-trailer office and residence truck.

The robbers, who apparently had planned the "job" with provision, blocked the trailer, last vehicle of the departing motordrome, with their large sedan.

Miller was struck several times with a pistol when he first handed a robber a bundle containing some $1,000. He was forced to give up the remainder of the money and his wife was relieved of two valuable diamond rings.

commissioner asked. "That's enough to start a revolution."

Assistant U. S. Attorney Roy M. Cohn replied: "There has been speculation." But he added that his boss, U. S. Attorney Irving H. Saypol, "will not comment on that."

The speculation to which Cohn referred was about a revolution plot.

Those arrested here were: Charlotte Whitehurst, 25; Jesus M. Roman, 39-year-old restaurant worker; Henry Chavarria, 55; Jose Antonio Roche, 50, and Rudolph Schmidt, 53.

Roche's brother, Oscar Roche, 50, was seized in Miami. The Cubans are Dr. Jose Manuel Fernandez Hernandez, 60, said by Cohn to be prominent in Cuban politics, and Jesus Mon, 38.
